

Why does the computer reboot on its own?

Written by Administrator

There are a number of issues related to this. One common issue is drivers conflicting, and that may take awhile to pinpoint which ones. If you recently installed a program and this started this problem try uninstalling the program to see if this helps. If this does not help, more detective work is required.

Memory, Video card issues, Power supply problems, a bad install of the operating system can all cause this. I generally format if this error is frequent and if the problem persists then it is something hardware related.

Try to narrow down the problem before you bring it in for service as some places will charge you at least a couple of hours of service.